Professional Profile

Dan Monaghan is a senior manager in the Perkins & Company tax department. Dan's professional background includes tax compliance, consulting, and research for professional service firms, manufacturing companies, real estate entities, fiduciaries, and individuals. Dan specializes in working with high-net worth individuals, estate planning entities, and professional service firms. He has more than 12 years of experience in public accounting.

Dan graduated from Western Washington University with a degree in accounting. Currently, he is serving as treasurer of the board of directors of Young Audiences of Oregon, is a member of the finance committee of the Vancouver Chamber of Commerce, and is a past participant in NWBCA's Art of Leadership series. Dan has also volunteered for the Oregon Cultural Trust where he researched the statutes and regulations and helped draft communications about the provisions of a new tax credit. Dan was chosen to speak at various engagements to promote and educate accounting professionals, the general public, and cultural organizations who benefited from the newly legislated tax credit.
